INTRODUCTION

Was 1989 a dull year? There were no worst-in-the-century floods or droughts or blizzards to contend with. But there were plenty of interesting events for local newspaper readers to follow.

The year began with the well-publicized trial of Frank Hopkins for the murder of activist Sharon Lapp. The trial was significant because it was the first time that DNA fingerprinting had been used as evidence in the State of Indiana. The year ended with the indictments of several members of the Wayne Township Trustee's Office including the trustee James Winters himself. Over 26 crack houses were raided as Fort Wayne continued its War on Drugs.

The Fort Wayne Community Schools first elected school board took office. Before the year was over the lawsuit brought by the Parents for Quality Education With Integration was settled.

Protests and petitions were numerous. The Baer Field Bond Petition was defeated. The County Option Income Tax was adopted over protests by many. Citizens of St. Joseph Township staged a campaign against annexation. Over 175 abortion protesters were arrested in August.

Waste management and recycling became issues. The City hired a waste management specialist and R-Day was declared a success.

The 1989 Fort Wayne Newspaper index has increased in size by 22% this year (up 66% since 1987). Over 33,000 entries in the index guide the user to specific articles in one of four local publications: The Fort Wayne NEWS-SENTINEL, The Fort Wayne JOURNAL-GAZETTE, the monthly BUSINESS DIGEST OF GREATER FORT WAYNE (feature articles only) and FROST ILLUSTRATED (selectively indexed). The focus of the Fort Wayne Newspaper Index is local and state news, public policy and business information. For that reason, sports events are not generally indexed and name indexing is far from complete. Obituaries and announcements of engagements, marriages or births are not included.

The index is arranged in subject order followed by the headline, the newspaper code, date and page. Editorials, guest columns, charts, graphs, and photos are indicated.

Codes used for the publications indexed are as follows:

BD	BUSINESS DIGEST OF GREATER FORT WAYNE
FI	FROST ILLUSTRATED
JG	JOURNAL-GAZETTE
NS	NEWS-SENTINEL

We wish to thank the Walter E. Helmke Library at IPFW for its continuing support and especially Ted Hunsberger for supervising the computer production of this index and Ann Rudig for her many, many hours of data entry.
